DOOMED to DIE ...

...UNLESS THE EU
ACTS NOW

Baby seals are being born right now on Canada's ice floes. Tragically, in just a few weeks' time, the defenseless pups will be slaughtered for their fur, much of which is exported to Europe. But there is hope on the horizon. Very soon, the European Parliament will vote on an historic proposal to prohibit trade in seal products - a chance to save millions of seals from a horrible fate.

Some MEPs want to replace a ban with a toothless labelling scheme for products derived from humanely slaughtered seals. This could never be properly enforced and policed. In practice, a label would promote more trade in the products of cruelty. European consumers will be misled. MEPs should vote for an unconditional prohibition on the trade in seal products.

Ban the Trade. End the Cruelty.
